AFFAIRS AT THE NAVY YARD

REARING OF THE CHARGES TO BEGIN ON MARCH 7-LITTLE WORK BEING DONE IN THE SHOPS -REPAIRS ON THE DRYDOCK.

Although instructions had been issued to have the Brooklyn ready for sea on Saturday, she was not ready at the close of work yesterday oon, and probably will not leave the yard before Tuesday, as there are tests to be made of the jobs recently completed, including the fitting of new hawse pipes designed to relieve the strain on the ship when the anchor is frepped and to do away with the danger of fouling the anchor chain in its rapid passage the bow of the ship. She is the only vessel of the fleet now at the yard, and in view of the reports which have come up from the vessels at Key West of breakdowns and other casualties, there is little reason on the part of the cynical as to whether or not it would not be better policy to keep the big cruiser safe at her moorings at the stone wall. Considerable discussion has been aroused as to the credibility of the reports that the Indiana's boiler tubes cave way on the trip to Key West, and the yard officers are sure that the boilers were all right when the ship was declared ready for sea after her last overhauling. She has not been at the Brooklyn yard for some time, but was thoroughly overhanded at her last visit.

The question of a successor to Admiral E. O. as head of the Bureau of Yards and ests lie in other directions. The disreputable condition of the Naval Academy buildings at Arnapolis, the dangerous conditions of the foundations of the War College building at Newport the trouble over the big drydock, the diffiulty with the causeway at the yard, the large amount expended for r pairs to work done at the Neval Hospital in Flushing-ave, are only a few of the instances of loss to the Government directly translable to the custom of placing the acts of civil engineers under the control of people who Menocal will be placed on trial on -narges of culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty, the court-martial beginning its sessions on March 7, at the Navy Yard. Whether or not other officers will be tried will depend on the disclosures at the court-martial. The charges grow out of the faulty work on Drydock Na 3, executed while Mr. Menocal was in charge or the department, and for which he is held responsible as chief inspector. The trou-bles of the Co k are by no means over, although the work is being rushed as fast as possible. TAMMANY AND WATER.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE LABORATORY AP-PLIANCES TO BE USED IN THE CROTON SHED.

BROOKLYN'S SUPPLY OF SECONDARY IMPORTANCE NOW-AMBIGUITY OF THE CHARTER MAY

WILSON, THE BACTERIOLOGIST. Having abolished the Brooklyn watershed laboratory at Rockville Centre the Tammany Hall Health Board proposes, it is said, to establish a laboratory on the Croton watershed. More than this, they are going to use the apparatus which was bought by Commissioner Emery with the money contributed by Brooklyn taxpayers in bacteriological and chemical analyses of the water supply of Man-hattan and The Bronx boroughs.

The authority for this statement is an ex-officer of the Brooklyn Health Department who is in close touch with the present Health Department. It is certain that there will be some lively criticism on the part of Brooklyn people if this plan should be carried into execution, as they are already disposed to think that their borough is overshadowed by the old New-York boroughs.

If such action be taken the excuse will probable be that Brooklyn had two water laboratories, and still has one at Mount Prospect, opposite Prospect Park. It will be recalled that Dr. Emery first established his laboratory at Rockville Centre immediately after the water scare in 1896. His theory was that the fault was in the sources of supply Then City Works Commissioner Willis established laboratory in the city on the theory that the ause of the impure condition of the water lay in Ridgewood Reservoir and the distribution pipes. Professor Hibbert Hill, one of the best water experts in the country, was put in charge of the Rockville Centre laboratory as bacteriologist. He and the chemist, James W. Elms, made a series of daily observations that showed the exact condition of every source of supply, and what the normal ondition of each source of supply is. The De partment published the report of Professor Hill, and it gave Brooklyn the first scientific knowledge it had of the water it drinks. He recommended filtration. Scientists and water experts have writcongratulating him upon the valuable work he has

Professor Hill will go to Johns Hopkins University in a few days to work with Professor Welch in the Pathological Department of that institution The New-York charter is ambiguous on the point as to whether the Water Supply Department of the Health Department is the proper Department to make scientific analyses of the water. It holds the Supply Department responsible for the purity of the water, and the Health Department esponsible for disease that may result from im-responsible for disease that may result from impure water.

After the charter was drafted Dr. Emery and Commissioner Willis each quoted it in support of his particular laboratory. Dr. Emery noted the fact that the medical papers had all sided with him, and at a recent meeting of the American Public Health Association, which was attended by representatives of all the important health associations and hoards of the country, a resolution was adopted expressing the belief that sanitary supervision and control of all public water supplies should be vested in the sanitary authorities.

It is understood that the New-York Health Department will fall in with this idea. The policy of the Water Supply Department regarding the Mount Prospect laboratory has not yet been anneunced.

Mount Prospect laboratory has not yet been and nemeed.

Dr. E. H. Wilson, who was bacteriologist of the Brooklyn Board of Health and is now director of the Hoagland Laboratory, declined yesterday to discuss the action of the Health Department in aboitshing the Rockville Centre laboratory. He expressed the belief that the Health Department is the proper Department to make scientific examination of the water, and that the proper place to make examinations is at the source of supply. Such a laboratory, after it was once started, he said, would not cost more than £,000 a year.

"Brooklyn's water supply is a much more complicated problem than is Manhattan's," he said. "A laboratory should be maintained on the water-sled, as a knowledge of the normal condition of the various sources of supply would enable the authorities to put their finger on the trouble wherever there was a variance from the normal. A laboratory should be right on the shed because specimens of water change in condition a great deal when certed any distance. Examination of the water drawn from the pipes shows whether there is sewage in the water but the important thing is to learn whence the sewage comes and that has to be learned on the shed. As for the insterionella that develops in the reservoir when the driven well-water is exposed to air and light, it is not worth keeping up a laboratory to study. It's not unwholesone, though disagrecable. The hould be a way of keeping the surface and well water sparatic. water separate.
"A laboratory is valuable not only for keeping track of disease impurities in water, but to show what land must be condemned for preserving the purity of the water, at a before money is expended in filtration or otherwise. A laboratory therefore has a practical value,"

Justice Maddox granted an order yesterday for the arrest of Frederick B. Dickerson, of No. 287 Fulton-st., and Edward P. Smith, who, until yesterday was doing business on a commission in the office of Ernestus Gulick. The men are charged with defrauding the Eagle Savings and Loan Company William E. Harney, who was also accused of con-spiracy with Dickerson and Smith, was not arrested, because he made an affidavit stating his connection with the case. Harney, it is alleged, had secured possession of a piece of property by misstating his age and declaring that he was more than twenty-one years old. On this representation, the Eagle Company lent money to him and the defendants learning afterward that Harney was not old enough to own property under the law. The company alleges that the defendants entered into a conspiracy to defraud it by representing that Harney desired to purchase some property from Smith's wife. Harney executed later to the plaintiff a bond and mortague on property in Gates ave. which the plaintiff assumed, not knowing that Harney could hold no property legally.
